CHICAGO CONVENTION.

The Plumed Knight Gradually Gaining the Prize.

Arthur's "Business Interest" Being Overturned by Circular Letters.

The Scene Described by a Gazette Reporter.

Special to the Gazette.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 2.—As the time draws nigh for the opening of the convention interest increases, or in fact has changed to positive excitement. The missionaries are beginning to show the effects of their vigils, though no abatement is visible in their enthusiasm. The Arthur delegates are perhaps the best conditioned of any, having very wisely split up into relays, one-half retiring to rest and sleep while the others worked. Gen. A. G. Malloy, one of the Texas delegates, was just met by a GAZETTE reporter and to the question "Who are the chances of war in favor of," remarked with a knowing wink "We'll see what we shall see." The Texas delegation receive great attention and any amount of ogling, as it is rumored that they are somewhat on the fence in regard to a choice. The office-holders are Arthur men per force, but they will

VOTE WITH THE WINNING side if they see their chief doomed to defeat. The number of delegates and visitors present has far exceeded the expectations of the oldest politician, and the rooms selected by the various candidates as headquarters after the first couple of days had to be abandoned and larger and more commodious quarters secured. In regard to the matter of headquarters there seems to be a rivalry between the Arthur and Blaine adherents to excel in the gorgeousness of their apartments. The Arthur faction aim to show by the magnificence of their surroundings that they are indeed the business men of the country and represent its wealth, and that all other interests are of secondary importance. The Blaine men, on the other hand, led by the gold kings of the Pacific slope and flanked by the goddess Ceres, from the grain fields of the West, are not to be outdone by the Knickerbockers, and lavish their money

WITH AMAZING PROPRIETY, and with an utter contempt for the Wall street monarchs. A prominent delegate from New York today remarked: "It is a fight between the gold of the Pacific and the bonds of the Atlantic, and if they are not careful some one

WILL SNATCH THE PRIZE while they are wrangling over it." This seems to fit the case exactly, and on this do the adherents of Gresham, Logan, Edmunds and Sherman base their hopes of success. It is now an admitted fact that the first and second ballots will result in a tie between Arthur and Blaine. The friends of the other candidates will endeavor to perpetuate the struggle between the leaders for a term until they can induce a break and a rush to the support of their favorite. This seems to be about all the chance either Sherman, Logan, Edmunds or Gresham has and the struggle will be a long one. The California and Nevada delegations boldly assert their intention to remain true to the man from Maine to the end and they are well provided for a summer campaign.

THE FIRST BALLOT is considered of the greatest importance; the one who shows the weaker side on this ballot will in all likelihood be done for, as if in the case of Arthur's receiving a majority on the first ballot it will precipitate a rally of the Blaine forces to some other compromise candidate, and as the friends of the other candidates will each endeavor to secure Blaine adherents for their choice, the result will be a split, and Arthur holding firmly to his original friends, and by bringing the power of the machine and a liberal disbursement of the Wall street money to bear upon the stragglers at this opportune time, a sufficient following will be obtained to carry him in. It is to be observed that this is

A TWO HANDED GAME, it will be played by the Blaine men for all it is worth. Edmunds has developed some strength to-day and it is said that his chances for being the compromise candidate have improved. Gresham has gained a few but—in event of a break—his following will likely go to Edmunds. It is admitted that the first balloting will be only a trial of strength between Blaine and Arthur, as their most enthusiastic friends do not claim a majority of the convention for either. There is some talk of

A DARK HORSE Being sprung on the convention. Who it is a matter of speculation. Gen. Hawley has been mentioned among the possible candidates, but it is probable his name will be mentioned only on the first ballot in a complimentary manner. If noise and enthusiasm could be regarded as an indication of success, Blaine would surely distance all others, but the trained troops of the Arthurites are moving with a mysteriousness and quietness which creates the impression that they know what they are doing and prepared to act when the time comes. Postmaster-General Gresham, it is said, can turn the tide in favor of any one he desires, as he can, in a great measure, control the delegations from Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and Michigan who, though outspoken for him, will not require much persuasion to induce them to join the ranks of a man of Gresham's choice. The Wisconsin, Minnesota and Indiana delegations are the center of attraction just now and will likely continue to be until the time comes when they will indicate their preference.

The Indiana delegation lack that unanimity which characterized their actions four years ago, and in this they show the absence of the ministering care of Dorsey.

There is some talk of a boom from the KNIGHTS OF LABOR for Blaine on account of his vigorous foreign policy while secretary of state. It is, perhaps, due to the large Irish element which is found in their number, and this assumption receives color and strength from the presence of Alexander Sullivan, president of the Irish National League of America. However, a leading Irish delegate from New York when the subject was mentioned to him today by a GAZETTE representative looked at the ideas as being absurd, and concluded by saying, "If you want to see what Irishmen think of Jim Blaine read the Irish World or let Paddy Ford, its editor, tell you about Blaine's much talked of vigorous foreign policy. That will settle all doubts. Irishmen want sterner stuff than Blaine." It is to be remarked, however, that he was an Arthur man out and out.

The struggle will be severe and perhaps of long duration. Every method known to political bushwhacking is being resorted to. The lobbies of Washington seem to have been transferred for the time to the lake city, and among the most earnest workers are to be seen the ENCHANTING FEMALE LOBBYISTS who have become familiar at Washington. They work openly and systematically in the effort to influence delegates, turn upon them the batteries of their most irresistible charms and fascinations. Wine suppers, private caucuses, interviews, button-holing and, though kept quietly, bargain and sale, is being indulged in, keeping the delegates in a state of constant bewilderment. A delegate from Massachusetts remarked to-day, "I have been a delegate to all kinds of conventions from Sunday-school up, but this is the first time that I have ever been importuned by a good-looking woman to vote for a measure for her sake."

At a late hour to-night the various headquarters were ablaze with light and splendor. The workers and henchmen were busy dispensing hospitality and making the most of the occasion in the interest of their candidates, and whippers-in scanned the streets hunting up and pulling in victims, even going so far as to storm the very citadel of opposing candidates and drag off a captive or two.

THE COLORED DELEGATES realize as they never did before the necessity they are to the American republic and the immeasurable importance they are as a factor in the politics of the country. They feel the freedom of a perfect and real social equality, and to the importuning of the henchmen or the tender appeals of the female lobbyist they lend an almost condescending ear, all the while floating carelessly on the stream of an assumed dignity, and reveling in the ecstasies of the distinguished attention they are receiving.

Cuney of Galveston was met by a GAZETTE reporter to-day but he is as mum as he was in Fort Worth. He is still at loggerheads with Malloy and the chances are that his adherence to Blaine will enable him to again sit down on the general.

THE SUB-COMMITTEE.

The sub-committee reported through the voice of Mr. Davis, chairman, in reference to the contested case from the first district of Georgia. The report declares the committee considered only the proceedings in the district convention as bearing on the prima facie case of the two parties, and then did not go into the merits of the split. Prior to that convention they filed the proceedings of that convention of an irregular character with very conflicting evidence as to its merits, but the committee decided on the whole the prima facie case was with Alex. N. Wilson and Laurin Blue and their alternates.

Mr. Devereaux moved as an amendment that the matter be referred to the committee on credentials, and that no names be placed on the rolls. Lost.

Mr. Devereaux then moved as a substitute that the names of Johnson and Green be placed on the rolls. Defeated.

The report of the committee was then adopted. Senator Jones reported verbally in the matter of the First Alabama district in favor of Messrs. Slaughter and Trent. The report was adopted without debate.

Senator Platt reported in the matter of the contest in the Twenty-second Pennsylvania district, putting on the rolls Magee and Flynn. Adopted without debate.

With respect to the contest in the Twenty-first Pennsylvania district, the committee recommended that neither Hays nor Wendling be placed on the rolls. This would leave Mr.
